

$15,000 Call for Academic Papers Contest

BRANDES INSTITUTE INVITES YOU TO SUBMIT AN ENTRY FOR THE BRANDES INSTITUTE PRIZE

Current graduate students and professors may submit original, unpublished and not-yet-accepted-for-publication research on:

1. Benjamin Graham-based principles solving a current problem for investors.
2. Behavioral biases when investing and practical approaches to counter—or exploit—these biases.
3. A current issue and solution related to corporate governance.
4. New perspectives for retirement plan structure, investing and/or distribution for institutional or individual investors.
5. How crises such as the COVID-19 pandemic create opportunities for active value managers.

Deadline for submissions: November 30, 2020

- Each paper must include an abstract that summarizes the issue, methodology and solution in 500 words or fewer.
- Each paper will be reviewed by members of the Brandes Institute. Winning entries will be selected by the Brandes Institute Advisory Board.
- COMPENSATION FOR WINNER(S): The Brandes Institute will recognize one winning paper written by an author(s) attending and/or teaching at an accredited university.

The winning author(s) will receive:

- A $15,000 award (to be split evenly among co-authors)
- Consideration for publication in one of the Portfolio Management Research journals

Runner-up author(s) will receive:

- A $5,000 award (to be split evenly among co-authors)
